

HIGH PERFORMANCE & WELLBEING

HALF-DAY WORKSHOP

OVERVIEW

Being able to give our best at work is a fine balance between protecting our wellbeing and maximising our productivity. Everyone struggles with procrastination, distraction and the pressures of 'performing'. Traditional time management strategies often only deal with symptoms and behaviours, not causes. In this workshop we look at the psychology of motivation, and explore the underlying causes of getting distracted by examining our emotions, beliefs and thought-habits. Once these are managed, giving our best is much easier.

OBJECTIVES

- Examine your role, individual tasks and priorities
- Explore the underlying psychological causes of distraction
- Implement practical strategies to harness emotions and thoughts
- Assess whether your psychological needs are being met in your role
- Establish a clear purpose to drive motivation

DETAILS

Monday, 15 April 2024

1.00pm - 4.30pm

Virtual - Zoom link supplied on enrolment

$385 per person (inclusive of GST)

Always feel positive leaving the varied sessions I have attended.

— Trevor Borchard
Manager | Pickering Transport

